The Student Employment Leadership Program (SELP) is a flexible program that offers workshops and activities designed to complement students' employment experience. SELP is geared towards the professional development of student employees and provides opportunities to intentionally promote student's growth in respect to the University's Student Development Outcomes. Both students and supervisors benefit from the completion of this program, and supervisors are encouraged to motivate their students to enroll. The program is available to any current on-campus undergraduate student employee at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities.

What is SELP?

The Student Employment Leadership Program is a flexible program that offers workshops & activities designed to complement students’ employment experience. SELP is geared towards the professional development of student employees and provides opportunities to intentionally promote student's growth in respect to the University's Student Development Outcomes. Both students and supervisors benefit from the completion of this program, and supervisors are encouraged to motivate their students to enroll. The program is available to any current on-campus undergraduate student employee at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities.

For more information go to www.selp.umn.edu
511 Science Teaching & Student Services | (612) 624-3076 | selp@umn.edu